Executive Summary

For more than a decade, water agencies within Yuba County have worked together to improve water management in the region by addressing local issues such as providing flood protection to protect lives and property, and providing reliable water supplies to meet agricultural and urban water needs while protecting the fisheries and riparian resources of the Yuba River.

In 2005, local agencies and stakeholders in Yuba County met and agreed to develop an Integrated Regional Water Management Plan (IRWM Plan). The IRWM Plan would address local water management issues for the communities within Yuba County on a regional perspective. The goal of the IRWM Plan is to continue to build upon past efforts to capitalize on present and future water management opportunities, including improving flood protection, water supply reliability, and other water resources needs in an environmentally appropriate approach that maximizes the benefits for the citizens of Yuba County.

Development of a comprehensive and coordinated regional water management plan for Yuba County involved the cooperation of many parties interested in water management in the region. Through the stakeholder outreach efforts included during the development of the IRWM Plan, the eight original water agencies that formed the Regional Water Management Group (Management Group) was expanded to 11. Yuba County Water Agency (YCWA) served as the regional lead agency in the coordinated development of the IRWM Plan, including the stakeholder outreach. YCWA also served as the lead agency for the Management Group in the preparation of the Proposition 50 IRWMP Planning Grant Application, which funded the preparation of the Yuba County IRWM Plan. The members of the Management Group include:

- Yuba County Water Agency (Lead Agency)
- Reclamation District 784
- Linda County Water District
- Brown's Valley Irrigation District
- City of Marysville
- Olivehurst Public Utility District

- ✓ ■ Yuba County
- ✓ ■ North Yuba Water District (formerly Yuba County Water District)
- ✓ ■ Yuba City
- ✓ ■ City of Wheatland
- ✓ ■ Yuba County Resource Conservation District

Integrated Regional Water Management Plan Area

The Yuba County IRWM Plan area includes the valley floor area and the foothill/mountain areas of the county, which face a variety of water management challenges resulting from natural and man-made conditions. Much of the Plan Area has been identified as disadvantaged, which presents additional challenges regarding the funding and implementation of projects and programs.

- The valley floor portion of the county overlies the alluvial aquifer system of the Sacramento Valley. Good soils and access to surface and groundwater supplies have developed and supported the agricultural economy of the region. Recent increases in urbanization have resulted in changes in water supply requirements and supply sources.
- In contrast, the foothill/mountain areas have a much less intensive agricultural and urban development. Water supply availability and reliability is one of the primary issues because of the lack of groundwater and difficulty moving water from the rivers to the areas of use across the rugged terrain.

Households in much of the Plan Area have a low annual income and have been identified as disadvantaged by the State. Historically, the low population base and limited financial resources have presented challenges to the area to fund and implement water management projects and programs.

Much of the region's present and future population growth is expected to occur on the valley floor area, where many of the low lying areas are at risk of regional flooding from the Yuba, Feather, or Bear rivers or of local flooding from stormwater runoff.

The changes in land use patterns and the associated changes in water use and supply source, changes in regulatory requirements, and hydrologic uncertainty have resulted in the need for improved surface water and groundwater supply reliability for agricultural and urban water users.
